Congressman Fattah, a senior appropriator and advocate for health Appropriations Committee, was honored this week with the Vangua Arthritis and Musculoskeletal Health Disparities at its "Movement is Washington.

Fattah, introduced by Dr. Said Ibrahim, Chief of Medicine at the Phil Center, was honored by the Movement is Life Summit for his "fierce continued support for the goals and ideals" of Movement is Life.

"I'm honored to receive this award and I am pleased to advocate for research that is being done in Philadelphia and elsewhere on the other critical health initiatives," Fattah said.

The six grants, announced by Fattah, totaling $3,660,250 for Philadelphia been awarded by health and research agencies of the National Institute of Health and Human Services. They are:

- $1,471,443 to the Penn Center for Innovation in Personalized Biotechnology Institute. This newly funded center seeks to improve breast cancer care by studying characteristics of individual patients.
- $372,000 to Penn for Diabetic Fracture Healing research for Arthritis from National Institute of Arthritis and Musculoskeletal and Skin Diseases to study increased risk of diabetes patients for delayed healing of fractures.
- $348,000 to Penn for a high priority, short term project research on liver diseases from the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases.
- $258,130 to Penn for a "Stop Smoking" study titled Constructing Health Messages: Smoking Cessation, a grant from the National Cancer Institute.
