

National League for Nursing, records MC 251

Abstract

This collection of the National League for Nursing consists of materials created post 1952. The largest series are publications primarily produced by the NLN, and video tapes produced by the NLN.

History

Founded in 1893 at the World's Fair in Chicago as the American Society of Superintendents of Training Schools for Nurses, the National League for Nursing was the first nursing organization in the United States. Isabel Hampton, superintendent at Johns Hopkins Training School in Baltimore, chaired a group of leaders who set the foundation for reforming nursing and nursing education. In 1912 it would become the National League of Nursing Education, and in 1952 it became as it is now known as the National League for Nursing (NLN).

The National League for Nursing is a leading organization for nurse faculty and leaders in nursing education. NLN members represent nursing education programs across higher education, health care organizations, and agencies.

Scope and Contents

The NLN collection was initially acquired by the Bates Center between 2015 and 2018, with continual donations.

The first series focuses on materials related to the business and operation of the National League for Nursing. Workshops, conference materials, mailings, council minutes, and board of director materials are included here. In addition, this series has newsletters and other annual publications.

Series two focuses on the chapter organizations, primarily the Colorado League for Nursing that has since disbanded. Records include meeting minutes, bylaws, financial information, conferences and partnerships CLN was in league with, and membership information. Some materials regarding the NLN, specifically conference programs, Presidents' orientation, and other NLN sponsored activities have been moved into series one.

The third series contains a few photographs used in a publication as well as the video tapes from their library, mostly produced by the National League for Nursing. These items have been digitized. Please contact the Center for more information.

The next series consists of printed materials used by the NLN or related to causes and reform movements, such as health care. This also includes newsletters and other mailed content produced by the NLN.

The fifth series contains publications produced by the NLN. There are some items found within the NLN library that are not produced by the NLN but relate to activities, actions, or ideology of the NLN. This also contains the proceedings of the annual convention held by the American Society of Superintendents of Training Schools for Nurses, and later, the National League for Nursing Education.
