(Jayasinghe/Teitelman) 06/01/2017- 5/31/2018

2017 Hillman Advancing Early Research Opportunities and Interdisciplinary Inquiry

Fellowships, $4820

Predictors of Intention to Seek Reproductive Health Services Amongst Young Adults in Kathmandu, Nepal
Mentored award for student research.

(Johnson)

07/01/2016-06/30/2018

American Cancer Society, $30,000

Implementation of Cervical Cancer Prevention Programs

Award to support PhD student Lauren Johnson for dissertation research. Mentors: A. Teitelman/A. Buttenheim

Completed Research Support

Penn SON Faculty Pilot Grant Program (Biomarker Challenge Grant) $20,000

1/1/16-6/30/17

Can fNIRS detect brain differences that affect HIV risk behavior in young women?

Role: Principal Investigator

To determine if non-invasive, portable functional near-infrared spectroscopy (fNIRS) evaluations are comparable to functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI) in assessing whether young urban women with high sexual risk have greater brain-behavior vulnerabilities compared to those that have low sexual risk

Merck Investigator Initiated Research Program, $32,659 and 180 doses of HPV vaccine 7/1/13 - 10/30/16

Step Up to Prevention

Role: Principal Investigator

To evaluate the impact of the cervical cancer prevention intervention, "Step Up to Prevention" on vaccine uptake and completion in the clinic setting. Vaccine product will allow us to offer HPV vaccine in the study protocol.

(Teitelman/ mentee Washio)

7/01/14-12/30/15

University of Pennsylvania Center for AIDS Research (CFAR), $40, 000

What is the impact of substance use and violence on HIV testing among postpartum women?

Role: Principal Investigator 3% effort

The American Academy of Nurse Practitioners Foundation, $30,000

1/1/12 – 12/30/15

Step Up to Prevention: A Nurse-Practitioner Guided Health Promotion Intervention

Role: Principal Investigator

To develop a brief clinic-based nurse practitioner guided theoretically-driven intervention to enhance cervical cancer prevention among young women ages 18-26 living in economically disadvantaged urban communities.

1R21MH097583-01 (Teitelman/Childress)

05/1/12 – 4/30/15

National Institute of Mental Health, $440,000

Do brain differences influence HIV risk behavior? A study of young urban women

Role: Principal Investigator 15% effort, AY and summer

A "proof-of-concept" study using functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI) to determine whether young urban women with high sexual risk have greater brain-behavior vulnerabilities compared to those that have low sexual risk. Findings may open the way for new brain-targeted and/or brain-informed strategies for vulnerable individuals.

(Teitelman)

05/01/14 – 04/30/15

Patricia Bleznak Silverstein and Howard A. Silverstein, $83,000

Everhealthier Women Enhanced Mobile App: Connecting Women to Cervical Cancer Preventive Care Practices

Role: Principal Investigator

To develop and determine if a web-based application (app) can be an effective tool for improving adherence to cervical cancer prevention behaviors and screenings among women
