RESEARCH

Past/Present Funded Research Grants

- 2018 – present Awardee, “The Role of Family Communication in the Sexual Socialization of Young Men Who have Sex with Men”, National Institute on Minority Health and Health Disparities (NIMHD), NIH Loan Repayment Program.
- 2017 – present Primary Investigator. Parents ASSIST (Parents Advancing Sexuality-Sensitive and Inclusive Sex Talks). Alex and Rita Hillman Family Foundation Emergent Innovation Grant.
This pilot intervention seeks to disrupt gay, bisexual, and queer (GBQ) adolescents’ vulnerability to HIV/STI infection by equipping the parents of GBQ teenagers with skills needed to engage their children in affirming and supportive sexuality-inclusive talks. We build on evidence-based strategies and other sources to create an online program featuring a series of 16 theoretically informed videos that will teach and model for 30 parents from diverse backgrounds how they can communicate about sex with their GBQ teens through supportive and inclusive discussions.
- 2017 – present Pilot Investigator. Parents as HIV/STI Prevention Agents for Gay, Bisexual, and Queer Adolescents Through Comprehensive Parent-Child Sex Communication. (R25MH087217, PI: Kershaw).
From a purposive sample of 45 parents whose male adolescent sons self-identify as GBQ, participants who either have or have not had any conversations about sex with their sons will be recruited for focus groups, in-depth interviews, card sorts, and theater testing. This strategy that focuses on parents’ perceptions about sex communication will inform the refinement of a GBQ-specific conceptual model about parent-child sex communication and the ecological systems that they and GBQ males navigate.
- 2016 – 2018 Postdoctoral Research Fellow. Research on Vulnerable Women, Children, and Families (T32NR007100, PI: Medoff-Cooper). University of Pennsylvania, School of Nursing. Philadelphia, PA.

Doctoral Dissertation

“The Perspectives of Gay, Bisexual, and Queer Adolescent Males with Parent-Child Sex Communication.” (July 21, 2016) Proquest ID: 13634. Supervisor: Dr. Julie Barroso. This study explored gay, bisexual, and queer (GBQ) adolescent males' perceptions of sex communication in the home. The specific aims of this study were to describe the perceptions of GBQ adolescent males regarding parent-child sex communication; to identify the sex-related topics for which GBQ adolescents males feel they need parental guidance; and to elicit suggestions from gay adolescent males on how parents might initiate and sustain parent-child sex communication. The study provides the foundation for interventions to help parents effectively inform their GBQ sons about how to reduce their chances of becoming infected with HIV and STIs.
