There are only so many hours in a day, and, as an instructor, it can sometimes feel like you’re spinning on a hamster wheel.

The good news is, Penn Nursing’s Instructional Design Team is here to help!

Please don't hesitate to schedule a thirty-minute Canvas check-in. During your consultation, we'll briefly touch on the following areas:

Quick Consultation:
We'll go over general course information and the overall course learning objectives in order to formulate an initial plan for Canvas.

Advanced Consultations:
Choose the subject(s) you’d like to focus on:

- Student-centered navigation practices
  Clear syllabus pages, assignment descriptions, and learning objectives
- Peer-to-peer learning and communication
  Peer review, group spaces, and discussions
- Universal Design for Learning practices
  Multiple means of content representation, student engagement, and expression of learning

After scheduling a consultation that best suits your needs, fill out the Course Design Plan.

Although not all of this needs to be filled out initially, make sure to include the course and instructor information along with the learning objectives.

The purpose of the course design plan is to help you develop the learning objectives and potential assignments for your course before you even start building in Canvas.

Please Note: All resources developed by Penn Nursing’s Instructional Design Team are available to you for guidance beyond this session. If you’d like to configure your course content to match our templates or schedule guided time to practice any newly acquired skills, we are more than happy to help!
